

What is Love?

It is an emotion that binds, commits, and can be intensely filled with tenderness.

Searching for love.

If love was easily found, then why do so many of us search for it? Maybe we tend to search in all the wrong places.

A fleeting emotion.

The warmth and depth of love can appear like a mist that dissipates quickly and is rarely captured. It finds us longing to fill a void in our life.

Is it possible?

Could there be a love that never fails or disappoints? Can there be an enduring love song truly meant for me?

What if?

What if love were patient, kind, and never resentful — a love that rejoices with truth no matter what. What could that look like?

God demonstrates his love to all of us.

His love pursues.

He wants us to be captured and arrive at a place where there will be no more tears or sorrow.

His love is unconditional.

He knows everything about us. Despite our failures, he receives us as we are. He offers hope that will never disappoint..

His love is lasts.

Enduring, perfect love is always anchored to a promise. Faith grasps our hurts and processes it with hope. It points us to a better place.

No greater love.

Love brought Jesus to us.

He's not just a man, but the author of perfect, relentless, pursuing love who always keeps his promises. He did so by sacrificing himself in our place. He lives again to prove that he can be trusted, that he is reliable, and he loves you unconditionally.

Whoever believes in him shall not perish but receive eternal life – the only life that truly matters.
